

the nearest bridge, but then this is the problem with nihilism. It has no answers and offers no hope. There is nothing but the bleak abyss of despair staring back at you. And the only sane response to that is to wonder why one even bothers at all, which is of course, not the answer to life, the universe, or anything. So thanks, but no thanks. I'm not buying this point of view. In fact, every fibre of my being rejects this point of view.

on the day when we pantomimed the chomping jaws of an alligator across a brief gap in swampspace & felt the need to communicate therein for legitimate safety reasons: however the sinister couple couldnt hear us nor discern our efforts 2 transmit the universal hand gesture for Gator bc they were too busy gigglin or because of bein drowned out by the slam of wind from thousands of cars on 55above bc traffic makes a psychological slam effect in addition din of the tunnel bhind us floppin the yaks while over some decades the roots rattle got slowly shook down by traffic green n brown n blue rainbows made no diff in relation to the tail n the water looked like thai ice tea when further from the concrete cylinders so we just climbed the bridge and threw rocks down at them: so much 4 safety

How to Be a Nuisance Alligator ...

Generally, there is not enough work to bitter flavor too much

no do not look away and dont start 2 cry. just stand and watch them get killed infront of u 1 by 1. until its dry blank eyes unfocus themselves into white ripples fly off into afs clouds fast as mechanical trafficsignals. dont stare and dont look away just remember not to make a sound nor cover ur mouth with ur hands the rope tightly wound around ur hands it keeps killing them and if u look away u also could die not just 1time but over n over every hour for ever so u have to silently beg each color house & each tree each piece of trash not to vanish just wait for it to climb back inside and stop dying when the wind blew under the wood platform the metal rattle laughs about falling down to smash how u can peel off the smashed face and fly back up to fall it back down to smash again it flew up and down long that slender vertical line w gravity type bliss of smashing never tell any 1 what u saw or u know it will die again and again it laughed!

what superstition is that even?!

it laughed when the floor fell out from under the roof is the floor a long white slide falling off every nite every time u drive downtown skid off the road and hit ur head into rock type stillness for ever laughing when it held rope at an angle try its best to pull its weight but the air screams and screams as follows "no please god dont lean back"
